

NARCISSE

Hi all, and welcome to the second month of Narcisse. Our first month was full of stress, and, as was wonderfully put by a reader, "a lil rough around the edges" but we got it out (the magazine that is!! Gigggle) and pretty chuffed we were too!!

So, here we go again, the resident pages are here, with some wonderful news on the "Talk-2-Go" page, some new ideas, new features and as much fun as you can shake a stick at. So hope you enjoy, and if you don't, get off your bum and CONTRIBUTE!!!! M xxx

“ Knowing me, Knowing you “

INTERVIEW

This months interview is with Chloie Anne Rich , she is a US soldier with a BS in Chemistry, AS in Criminal Justice & has Just started an AS in Psychology.

Why do you think you dress? Stress release at first, but deep down I feel I have a girl that is Yearning to come out, I have always seen myself as a girl.

You have a young child, how do you think that will affect you? It has had a small effect, not being able to spend as much time as Chloie as I would like. I hope we can raise him to accept all walks of life.

Why the name Chloie? I wanted to state the fact that this side of me was becoming a real Person. Chloie was the name Amayi (my wife ) liked the most. I liked it just as much.

When did you tell your wife about Chloie? We had been married about two months when she asked me to put on her silk robe to see how it would look. I was scared out of my mind that she may have known. I told her no and thought it was over with. I had this urge to tell her The truth about how I felt. The next morning I spilled my guts about my other side. She just grinned from ear to ear. She asked me to dress up, what a dream it was!! I had Never felt such a release of pressure than that.

Your lucky to have such a supportive wife. Yes I am , she has been there through all the ups and downs we have to deal with. I owe her everything.

You are a soldier in your day job? Yes, bit of a contrast! I do love my country very much and come from a long line of soldiers. I felt it was something I had to do, kind of “ in the blood”. I do enjoy the fun I have had jumping out of aircraft and playing G. I. Joe, or G. I. Jane xx

Describe your Look. I wanted a classy , yet , girl next door look, able to be Professional yet sexy when needed.

What is your Favourite look? Dark hair up, natural make-up, jeans, camisole, with boots,

How far do you think you will go with your dressing? I have thought about full-time. I have wanted to be able to live as a woman, but still be able to be a guy when needed. Amayi supports whatever choices I make along the way. She has said "I would love to see you with a little extra up top to fill things Out."

Would you go all the way? And have it removed? I have thought about it many times, to the point of SRS. I do view myself as a girl, but there is a little bit of a guy still in here.

What wouldn't you Do? Just that, have it removed, everything else is on the list. I have started Electrolysis three months ago. I do plan on having my Adams Apple shaved this summer when my neck is clear of hair.

What other passions do you have? I'm into Paint-balling big-time. I love the outdoors and all the things you can do out in it. SHOPPING!!! There is nothing like getting new outfits , and shoes to match, lots of shoes.

Shoes or Boots? Boots , with a heel on them. They need to be calf-length or higher.

Do you have any Inspirational T-girls? Mandy from URNA, she is always a beauty, Renee Reyes from URNA, my sister Isabel from the Netherlands. The list is big but those three stick out the most. Very beautiful and always there to talk to when needed. Mandy Taylor was the first to talk to me on URNA so I always look to her for inspiration.

What do you hope to do in the future? I want to finish school, in what , I don't know yet. I have been a Jack of all trades so I think anything would be nice. I've about Beauty School and Massage Therapy, we would love to open a spa that is geared towards the TG Community.

Height- 5'11"
Weight- If you must know. 168 was 185 2 months ago
Stats- 38-32-38
Marital status- Very married

Likes- Shopping for just about anything, paintball, just about any video-game out there, science, and comic books (I'm a geek I know).

Dislikes- Close minded people, judging others, drunk drivers, and mushrooms.

Fun stuff I have done- Military airborne school, free fall school, jumped from all types of aircraft, been to Sapper school (combat engineer). Visited many countries Thai-land, Japan, Philippines, Italy, Egypt and the Arctic circle

“ POLLS APART “

Not many polls this month, but none-the-less they have still proved to be a valuable insight into the lives of our members.

We kicked off this month not with the question of “ why? “ but “ when? “. At what age did you begin to experiment with dressing? Unsurprisingly the vast majority of members began at 6-10 (36%) and 11-20 (42%). This must clearly be linked with the surge of hormones and the self-awareness that we gain at that age, but what is puzzling is what make some pursue a lifetime of Transvestitism and some cast these feelings aside ( or don't experience them at all?). Next were the 0-5 age group ( myself included) on 16%, my dressing was self-imposed, but I wonder how many of these have “ older sisters”?? hmmm..... Lastly , and very few and far between were the 21-30 and 31-40's, (4% and 2%), one wonders whether this is down to lack of opportunity rather than enthusiasm, would be nice to find out.

Next we were to discover how brazen our members were, with To what degree are you known to other people? Unsurprisingly, even in this day and age, very few are known to everyone, 2% for singles and 1% for those with partners. Again , I am in this category, as there are still one or two people that I feel I cannot trust the truth with , for various reasons. I am glad to see, though, that a healthy 23% (S) and 26% (P) have at least some people that they have felt are adult enough to view their transvestitism with a favourable eye, so obviously times are changing, if PAINFULLY slowly!!!! But , alas, there is still a fairly high percentage of you who feel unable to share your cross-dressing with anyone, this makes me sad, but I hope that through magazines like this we can at least provide some much needed support.

Lastly it was Christmas prezzie time!! YOU SHALLOW LOT!!! Hahahaha. By a mile was Beauty Treatment (27%), Awwww do we need a pampering? Hehe Then was a night out(17%), Jimmy Choo's (Duh! Surprise!!) (15%) and Sexy Undies (14%). BUT!!!! Don't WE all smell nice then? Not one of you wanted some nice perfume NOR a nice new bag to keep it all in! Oh well! No accounting for taste!

So there you have it, the last mag was received favourably, but I think you will agree that this months is MILES better, it's a learning curve, so onwards and upwards! As for the calendar, I think I left that idea a lil bit too late, but if you are still interested please contact me directly and I'll sort one out for you.....XX

JOKES

(BAD ONES!!!)

A Woman 'phones her husband at work. He says “Don't talk now - I'm very busy.”

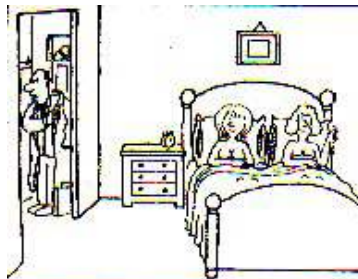

“Oh this wont take long.” she says. “I've got some good news and bad news.”

Her husband says “ Just give me the good news then.”

“Well,” says the wife “the airbag works.....”

While an old lady was polishing an antique lamp, a genie appeared and gave her three wishes. The lady asked to be young, rich and for her cat to be turned into a handsome prince.

Her wishes were granted, the prince took the lady in his arms. As long forgotten feelings stirred for the lady, the prince whispered “ Now I bet your sorry you took me to the vets for that lil operation.....”

You'd never believe it! I got replaced by a woman at work today!

Talk-2-Jo

Well all, this months "Talk-2-Jo" is a lil different. You may remember last month a letter from Sarah & her partner "discovering" her secret. Well, with her kind permission, here are the transcripts of our correspondence and the fantastic outcome.

Your timing was perfect as I need all the support I can get right now...

In a sad way it is all rather funny and ironic really, as I voted in your 'What would be your worse fear of discovery?' poll on 'lil boutique', and this very week my wife found all the pictures of me dressed on my computer! Needless to say, many things have hit the fan since then and I am still a bit shell shocked by it all... I love my wife very much and I guess I should have had the courage to tell her before she found out this way, but it is too late for that now and I will have to deal with the storm that is still to come somehow.

She has been very quiet the past couple of days and it seems like she has put an invisible barrier between us as she is very distant, and although she is civil for the most part there is a coldness about her that I have never felt before.

To be honest, I am scared and unsure just how to handle the situation and in truth I have never felt so alone as I do right now...

I know in my heart that I will not be able to stop dressing but will she ever come to accept me for what I am? I guess that all I can do is hope and pray that she will at least try to understand as I can't bear the thought of losing her. What a mess...!

Dear Karen

Thank-you so much for writing to me, may I say with all my heart that I will ALWAYS be here for you if you need a chat. It is so ironic the things you say in your letter. When you read the interview in this months magazine, you would swear blind that I copied my own experiences from you!!!! My wife found my things 8 years ago, and she too went into "quiet mode" for 3 days, My god girl do I sympathise!!!! The longest 3 days of my life!!

Right, first things first, don't panic! the "shell" she has gone into is a safety blanket, to give her time to think things through. The emotions she are going through are every extreme X 1000, Anger, confusion, sorrow, you name it, she is feeling it. For our part, my wife was most hurt and upset by the fact I didn't feel I could confide something so huge in her. No matter how many times you explain that you don't say because you fear losing them, they probably will never understand.

Be honest! BUT!!! not brutally honest, don't feel you have to tell her every tiny detail, there are some things best left unsaid.

Don't bring in "friends" off the net as examples, this is a private thing, to be worked out between the two of you, she does not need the fact that loads of "strangers" off the net know, she will feel the last one to know, and this will upset her all the more,

There will be the usual questions, are you gay? will you be having a sex change? etc BE Honest!! I do not know your position in this, so can only offer my own advice as a straight TG, I explained to my wife that it is only clothes, that is all, and for me, that is all it is.

You must also accept that things will never be the same again. This is not to say that that is a bad thing, but there is no trust there any more and you will have to work DAMN hard to gain it back. This could and probably will take years, you will have to be patient. Explain to her that you are still the same person as you were 5 minutes before she used the computer, in that, nothing has changed.

She will want to talk in time, understand that everything she believed in has changed so be as understanding of this as is possible.

Beyond this, the rest is a healing process.

I hope this has helped a lil bit, please call me with whatever questions you may have, I'll help as best as I can.

I look forward to hearing from you very soon.

stay calm honey

I can't thank you enough for your kind words of support and advice. Although I am well aware that I have to face this trial alone it is a great help to know that I have you in my corner and I am more grateful than you can know for that...! Right now though things look rather bleak... My wife is still very distant and after the first initial explosion she has only spoken about it one other time, and that was laced with words like "We'll get through Christmas for the sake of the family and then... I don't know..."

I am so worried as I love her dearly and I know she must still love me somewhere deep inside. We have always been very close... Perhaps that is why she is so angry with me, she must feel totally betrayed and I guess she doesn't have another woman's eyes to scratch out... I am the other woman!

I really need to sit down with her and talk, but that is a major problem at the moment as we hardly get to see each other just now. I am a musician and I am working every evening throughout December whereas my wife works 9 to 5. The only time we are together is when I get home in the early hours of the morning and she is in her fortress on the furthest side of the bed and she growls if I even go near her.

What worries me the most is that if I don't get her to talk, shout, scream or whatever, things may fester in her mind and by the time we do eventually get to talk she will have tried and convicted me without a word being spoken and my struggle will surely be lost.

Dear Karen,

first of all, you are not alone, at the very least you have my wife and I to talk to, scant comfort I know, but its a start!! hehe. I can sympathise with your problem of not having the time to talk and sort things out, and I feel that you are absolutely correct when you say that to leave it any longer will let the problem "fester". The only solution that I can see is in the form of a letter.

This will be good for a number of reasons, It will be the hardest letter you will ever write , but at least it will give you time to put down all your feelings without interruption, if your house is anything like mine the 'phone or door are always going! Secondly it will give your wife time to sit down , read, and re-read at her own pace , with no pressure.

Take it slow , but I think this would be your best course of action.

Hope this has helped a lil, and don't forget we are here whenever you need to talk

Hugs

I can't tell you how relieved I am...! It looks like everything is finally going to be alright. I feel as though a huge weight has been lifted off my shoulders and I have gone from utter dejection to utter joy in the blink of an eye.

My wife took a couple of days off as she was feeling unwell, (probably due to the stress of the situation we were both in) and so we finally got to sit down and talk.

To tell you the truth I was in 'panic mode' as I didn't know what I was about to face, but as it turned out she was extremely calm and understanding given the circumstances. As I expected she was very hurt and confused by this sudden turn in our lives but she at least had the good grace to hear me out and question me openly about my dressing.

I was so grateful for the advice you had given me and I answered all her questions honestly but without going into too much detail. I reassured her many times that I am still the same man she has always known and that I loved her with all my heart, in fact I went further, telling her how I felt even closer to her now I had finally allowed my feminine side to develop.

I have to confess that she surprised me somewhat by being so composed about the whole thing and I admire her so much for not taking the opportunity to lay into me.

The outcome of it all was that she will now accept my dressing although for now she does not want to see me dressed, but she has told me that I can have a space in my wardrobe for my female clothes.

Hindsight is a wonderful thing, and I now know that I should have never underestimated her strength of character and integrity and told her much sooner, I could have saved myself a great deal of anguish and lived with myself a lot easier knowing that I was not deceiving her.

I am fully aware that I have to build many bridges to regain her trust and belief in me as in her own words she said... "I'm not sure who you are any more, my image of you as my husband has shattered and I now see 'her' in my head as well as you"

With love, gentleness and determination I am going to reach out to her every day and prove that I am still the loving husband she once knew and now that I have found 'myself' she will hopefully find me an even more caring, thoughtful husband than I was before .

I will have to find a new name for myself as I have borrowed my wife's up to this point. (I hope she takes that as a complement), so with my new, fresh start I am going to give myself a new, fresh name, and from now on I am going to call myself 'Sarah'.

I still hope with all my heart that one day my wife Karen will come to fully accept me as Sarah, as I just know she would like the person I become when I'm dressed, but for now I am content that she accepts me at all and has the goodness of heart to allow me the freedom to be who I am.

We have promised each other that we will not bottle anything up and stay honest and open with regard to my dressing. I have told Karen that anytime she feels she wants to talk to me about Sarah or ask me a question to do so, as it does concern me that she has no one to talk to or confide in about this.

So there you are , they say that 'all's well that ends well'. Well I for one know that this is not the end, it is just the beginning of a new and honest life for my wife and I, and I am determined to make it a happy one for both of us!

Finally let me thank you from the bottom of my heart for all the help and support you have given me over the past couple of weeks. I really was at my wits end for a while and your great kindness helped me hold myself together and get through such a difficult time.

I sign off now a much happier girl than when I last wrote.

Huge hugz.

Sarah xxx

My story is pretty much like everyone's, being a closet dresser on and off since my teens, going through the periods of guilt and denial and only coming out to my wife (now ex) five years ago.

Oh how I wish I had done it sooner! Since then I've been getting out and about as much as possible, going to groups like Mystics and Transliving and enjoying the pleasure of the many new friendships that I have made. I have also made numerous friends on web sites, including tvchix and transdates - where I am three-times winner of transbabe of the month and now looking for the prize of babe of the year, so come on girls, give me your votes (just a little plug).

I like to dress smartly and stylishly but occasionally dress down in jeans and tee shirt, with high heels of course.

I recently had an excellent makeover by Pandora at image works and was absolutely delighted with the results. So much so that I finished of the evening at Stunners where I caught the attention of many of the admirers, cant wait for the next time.

WARNING!!!

Be aware of a new car-jacking scam.

You walk across the car park, unlock your car and get inside, lock the doors, start the engine and select reverse.

You look into the rear-view mirror to back out of your parking space and notice a piece of paper stuck to the middle of the rear window.

So, you shift back into park or neutral, unlock the doors and get out to remove the paper (or whatever it is) that is obstructing your view.

When you reach the back of your car the car-jackers appear out of nowhere, jump into your car and take off. Your engine was running and you would have left your handbag or briefcase in the car.

APART FROM NICKING ANYTHING OF VALUE, THEY MIGHT FIND YOUR ADDRESS AND THEY ALREADY HAVE YOUR KEYS! And your insurance is null & void too!!!!

Remember, if you see your rear view blocked like this just drive away and remove the paper later! It is stuck to your window!

THIS SCAM IS HAPPENING IN LONDON RIGHT NOW AND WILL SURELY SPREAD TO OTHER AREAS

( Thank-you to Joanne Strake & others for bringing this to our attention)

A Cross-dresser's Dilemma

Have you noticed how many people have come out of the closet these days? Yet, there are those who are closeted and know they simply cannot come out.

In an article written by Gianna E. Israel, she states "a person's reasons for coming out can be just as valid as those reasons a person may have for staying in the closet." Closeted or not, it is important to recognize that each individual has placed particular importance on getting their needs fulfilled, and typically one's choice is not better than another.

The one area that takes control is that of the cross-dresser's need to maintain a strong sense of masculine identity when not cross-dressed. There is nothing wrong with having a healthy femme identity for a cross-dressing male, just as there is nothing wrong with having a healthy sense of masculinity.

In coming to terms with having a need to cross-dress, it is very important to feel good about yourself. Cross-dressers frequently are interested in hearing and seeing how others view their female appearance. Cross-dressers will post dozens of pictures on various websites and internet groups (such as this one) to get society's view of how they have personified their femininity. Positive feedback provides self confidence, and negative feedback provides the need to improve.

People have been cross-dressing for a long, long time. There is nothing to feel guilty about. It is one's choice to remain "in the closet" or "to come out". Keep in mind that the most important issue for all transgender persons, is to have a reasonable quality of life.

Be kind to yourself and enjoy cross-dressing for what you get out of it. Whether you decide to tell someone, everyone, or no one about this desire to cross-dress, remember it is for your own needs that this is done.

As night intrudes upon the day so do my dreams of her, a beauty so fair that the snow is blinded by her beauty with wings of darkness she envelopes me into the dread of the night, upon her wings of black my heart and soul leap at a chance to be with her as I open the windows to allow her perfume to come in to my room. Alone in anticipation of the coming bite that she is to lay upon my heart, I dread the coming day when all her beauty will escape into the coming dawn and leave me alone and afraid. A fear to be with out her love is what I fear the most. Her lips so Ruby red that they must have been drawn by ever lasting blood and love as her smile envelopes my soul, my lust for her ever growing so as I await her coming with the night. Now beats the clock as it beats twelve o'clock and the chimes ring ever so, echoing down the long forgotten hallways of time and senses. The smell of lily's come wafting into my room as the fog rises from the ground and there she stands as the cloud parts as if allowing a queen to step through. I watch as her beauty unfolds like her wings that she has come with upon the cool night air, she whispers my name and I rise to greet her still laying down awaiting to wrap my arms around her waist and kiss her ever so.

Review

Each month we are hoping to bring to you a review , of what I'm not sure yet, films, books, TV, who knows? But this month were getting the ball rolling with a review of the Top 5 Tg Chat-rooms, brought to you by the lovely Sarah.

<http://www.tvchix.com/chat.php>

At first glance the TVChix site really does not look much , but what it hides is possibly the best set of membership profiles and pictures you are likely to come across. You need to join up to be able the access the chat rooms but this is free. This also gives you a limited look at some of the pictures on the profiles, but for £1.50 a month from your mobile you get to use all the features and see every-ones pics.

Right as we are here to review the chat-rooms its best we get on with it! Once you have signed up you go to the chat room area of the site which, at first, takes you to a set of rules then you can click through to get to the main chat area. You will see 3 rooms, they are a chat only room, a "meet" arranging room and an admirers and girls room, which pretty much speak for themselves. What you will also see is a set of pen pictures of all the chatters in the various rooms. This updates every 5 minutes.

Ok onto the rooms themselves . I have to say I had quick glimpses into the smaller occupied rooms but this review is based on the chat only room. Once you are in you tend to get the "Waltons" syndrome. Lots of "HI".s then silence where a lot of folk are in private chats. You do get some threads in the main room but this is more likely to occur in the evening when the regular users are about and very early mornings when there are just a few people in.

Once in the main room you will still see the pen pics. On the right of the screen you will see a list of the users. In this list you click on a users name and you can choose to chat privately or look at a profile, which in general are very covered. The site admin has made it easy to compile a profile by adding lists of interests in a tick-list format. The interface is really easy to use and you have a number of emotions to use as well.

The only real gripe I have with it is the fact that if you want to keep your PM windows open it covers the main room, but it does not take much to minimise them. I found the majority of the people in there very nice and in general people will chat about girly stuff, you get guys in there too and many are very genuine but you will get the odd one who will be very nervous and "what are you wearing" is the best you will get. the other end of the scale is the perv who basically wants to do all things to you and even if you not interested will keep on until you put him on ignore. All in all I have used this room many times and had many a good gossip with lots of very nice girls. The main thing I love this site for is the profiles and of course because one of these profiles was Mandy looking stunning as ever. (Her words not mine-so I'm keeping it in!!!! giggle M )

<http://www.birchplace.com/chat/>

OK RXXX. This site is run by the birch-place organisation and they sell stuff and also set up web pages and sites for members. You need to sign up for the directories and contacts but not for the chat-rooms. When you get to the chat page from the home page which shows the shop, directory links and a couple of nice pics of girls, you will find the 2 interfaces for the chat. The first one allows you to use all the features of the room one of which is picture sharing. There is no sign up for either room just a couple of windows to enter name and location which is not optional and is very strictly policed by the room moderators, of which there are many and you do tend to find at least one there for the majority of the time.

Review

Once in the main room you might find things look a tad daunting but stick with it. The main room interface is a window at the bottom of the main screen and the list of users on the right with buttons for private chats and profiles, which we shall look at in a mo. You can sort the list by order of room entry or alphabetically ascending/descending. The moderators can be seen by a small icon "mod". Self explanatory I hope! Private messaging on here is very easy and you get an automatic popup window every time you are contacted or contact somebody else.

Where this room has an advantage over tvchix is these windows are all self contained so the main room is left clear. Where this room falls down next to tvchix is the lack of profiles. I know people cant be bothered a lot of the time but if these things were more insisted upon it would cut out so much of that mundane small talk such as my all time pet hate question "What are you into?"

You also find with the main room that you do not get many ongoing threads other than the Hi and byes. The best time, once again, is the evening ,around 10pm onwards ,when everyone has lightened up a bit after a night out or time dressed etc. They have had some trouble here previously with abuse but that seems to be very rare now as the moderators are very quick to act on any incident and for roomies who do not add a location to their name. The room also contains a chat watch system where certain words are banned and you will get a message telling you so.

Now in most cases this is a good thing and does not need explaining, but there is one which is totally childish from my point of view and if anyone connected to birch-place could tell me why this is the case I would love to know. When you type in TVCHIX it is on the list of banned words. It is also very frustrating because many girls will use their tvchix homepage as the main profile ,because ,if used properly, can be very comprehensive.

All in all a good room, try to go in with a conversation in mind and you will get some good threads going. If you are going in to meet somebody please follow all the usual sensible rules. Get a phone number etc.

<http://www.mrs-silk.com/chat.htm>

This sites homepage is probably the best i have seen so far with an introduction page and its very colourful pics. But as far as the chat goes that's the end of any colour.

You go to the main java interface and you just have to put in a user name. When you get into the room its very bland. There is a list of users on the left of the screen. You can click on the users for a private conversation, but there are no dedicated profiles. The only way to get to any profiles is via links that the user has to place themselves.

The room does not appear to be moderated on a regular basis although 2 names are mentioned in the rules that you get when you enter the chat. The Private Messages appear in separate windows but the default font is tiny and its just an annoyance but to change things when you are already unimpressed is not a help.

It might have been the times that I went to this room and the people in it but I found this room totally uninspiring, again it could have just been the times but the lack of colour and pics had me leaving within a very short time.

I cant see myself coming back here. Sorry mistress..;-)

Review

<http://www.danistroom.com/chat/>

Now on entering this site you are treated to some very nice illustrations and a main picture of the sites owner Dani. This page is very pleasing on the eye and very nicely laid out with 3 large pictures that lead t links for the chat-room, profiles and some very nice bits and pieces from Dani about going out dressed and general life as a TS or TV.

To gain access to the chat-room you will need to do a profile and that will include a picture, which is a fabulous rule but ultimately I think leads to the problem that I will discuss in a moment. Once you have completed your profile which asks for a few brief words about yourself, you will need to get it activated from your own email which will have confirmation of your username. You will then get a link back to the room.

Once in there is a user list on the right hand side and the main window has a typing interface just below. Its very much down the lines of RXXX. I cant tell you about moderation or type of folk you get in there because basically over the 3 times i went in there for my research there was nobody else there. Which is a pity because the whole site really is worth the visit.

As I said earlier I think the pic rule might well contribute to the lack of users but I hope some people really do take up going into the chat room because it would be a pity to lose this resource and for layout of site and room alone this would be a high scorer for me.

Well I think this site is probably the best known to most TG folk so I don't really need to go into the layout too much. There is no registration required for the chat-room. There are some rules listed before you enter mentioning about the volunteer mods. When I went into the room it was not very obvious who these might be, and also at this this time there was a pretty nasty row going on, so I take it there were none around.

The chat-room is Java driven very much like RXXX.I did like the large font used for the user list I have to say. Also when you PM you get a Tab on the side of the user name so you can see the users profile. The main chat interface is a line at the bottom of the main window.

Now I have to say I am very surprised at the lack of a need for profiles especially from such a high profile site as this one. Its very frustrating when you have to ask all the questions that a basic profile might cover. I was only there for a short while but I have to say, and it could have been the time, I was not felt overly welcome, one person did reply to my hello but out of the 50 in the room that was very disappointing.

Review

I hope it was the fact that I was just in the wrong place at the wrong time as this site is one of the top sites visited by the community. If it was , then lets hope the admins on the site can just have a think about registration and profile use because the room itself is probably the best laid out of the java based rooms.

Well then campers,
not only another months
Narcisse comes to a close,
but we seem to have run out of year too. Where's it gone? I hear you cry!
Buggered if I know!
Seems like only 12
months ago I was a lonely
Trannie without a friend in the world, never talked to another TG, let alone met one! Never been out dressed, nor put a picture of myself for all to see.
Had no Yahoo site and a MUCH smaller wardrobe and still smoked !!

Now look at me ! A look obsessed clothes-horse with a Napoleon complex and no finger-nails!!!

Oh well, cant have everything I suppose!
